How well pupils achieve and enjoy their learning in Religious Education is good.

- Almost all pupils recognise the importance of Religious Education and enjoy it. They demonstrate enthusiasm and enjoyment in their learning. Most pupils are religiously literate and many are very articulate and thoughtful in their oral responses.
- Pupils said that learning in Religious Education often involved lots of writing and was most enjoyable when their teachers made learning fun. Behaviour for learning in lessons is very good with pupils concentrating very well and displaying positive attitudes towards learning.
- Most pupils make good progress over time across a range of skills and are developing well in terms of their knowledge and understanding. Pupils' ability to interpret sources and symbols, the ability to reflect and evaluate and the ability to engage with religious ideas is strongest where staff have very secure specialist subject knowledge.
- Pupils make most progress towards the end of key stage two as a result of high quality teaching and teachers having a clear understanding of how pupils learn effectively.
- Outcomes for pupils are good overall but have been inconsistent in recent years due to changes in staffing across school. With targeted interventions from skilled support staff children with special educational needs make progress comparable to the progress of other pupils.

The quality of teaching and assessment in Religious Education is good.

- Teaching is mostly good with some examples of outstanding teaching. In the best lessons pupils are set challenging tasks which are well matched to their learning needs and which successfully engage all pupils.
- In a minority of lessons a lack of specialist subject knowledge means that activities are not always best matched to pupils' abilities or fail to engage all groups of learners.
- Relationships between staff and pupils are a real strength at St James'. Support staff are used effectively to reinforce learning and to support and extend pupils of different abilities.
- Assessments are regular and the Religious Education coordinator has developed a rigorous tracking system which clearly indicates where the strengths and areas for development are across school. The Religious Education coordinator is aware that teaching is weaker in some classes and is taking steps to address this with planned support and a comprehensive training schedule.

- In the best lessons teachers systematically and effectively check pupils' understanding throughout lessons, anticipating where they need to intervene and do so with notable impact on the quality of learning.
- Marking and constructive feedback is evident across school but it is still not being used consistently in all classes. There are some excellent examples of focused marking and feedback in some classes which pupils' appreciate. They said 'The Gospels can be difficult to understand but the teachers really help us when they show us the next steps'.

How well leaders and managers promote, monitor and evaluate the provision for Religious Education is outstanding.

- The monitoring and evaluation of Religious Education is rigorous and robust and it enables leaders in school to plan effectively to deliver the best outcomes for all pupils. Searching analysis carried out by the Religious Education coordinator clearly identifies strengths and the key areas for improvement. These areas for improvement are detailed in the school improvement plan which is shared with governors.
- Leaders are relentless in their desire to improve teaching and learning in Religious Education across school. As a result of this teaching is at least good across school and in some cases outstanding.
- Leaders in school have a clear and inspiring vision for Religious Education which is clearly communicated to all staff, pupils, parents and the wider community.
- Sacramental preparation is a real strength at St James' as it ties the school to the parish community in a unique way which benefits all concerned. Parents value the opportunity to be involved directly in their child's faith journey, describing the experience as 'the highlight of our time here at St James'.
- Governors are regular visitors to school and are deeply involved in the life of the school and as a result are well placed to monitor and evaluate the provision for Religious Education. They are knowledgeable about standards in Religious Education and are able to support and challenge the leadership team effectively.
- Religious Education is well resourced and meets the requirements of the Bishops' Conference.
