Late

Your Child & School

Attendance Matters

Consider that your child may feel the 'odd one out' when walking into a class late.

Teaching your child the importance of being punctual will help them in the future

Repeated lateness will mean that Education Welfare may telephone you or visit you at home

Making sure that your child is prepared for school and arrives on time will enable your child to fully concentrate in class.

Being late could result in our child being marked as U = late after registration, which in terms effects their percentage attendance.
