2. Order the sentences below from the most certain to the least certain.

A. We could probably make the ten o'clock train.

B. My dad could possibly make it home from work in time for dinner.

C. I will definitely make a cake for the summer fayre.

3. Hafsa is substituting the underlined word in the sentence with an alternative adverb to indicate how certain something is.

It will probably rain tomorrow. It has rained all week.

If I change the adverb to 'definitely' the sentence will still have the same meaning.

Is she correct?
