The website is: <https://www.phonicsplay.co.uk/> but it can also be accessed by typing 'phonics play' into Google. On YouTube, Mr Thorne does phonics is another particularly good website. <https://www.bbc.co.uk/bitesize> offers a variety of phonics and literacy activities.

- Without showing the children any of the book, including the cover, or sharing the title, read aloud the first sentence. Using pastels or drawing pencils, ask them to draw what they see in their mind, to illustrate the sentence.

- Read the first two pages (of text) from the book, emphasizing how Noi is left alone all day. Talk about what kinds of things Noi might be doing all day. Discuss what kinds of things his father might be doing all day. Children will role play acting out what the characters may be doing/saying.
- Read the first two pages of the text with children again. Talk about how children may find it fun to plan what food they would eat through the day. Children will choose what they would have for breakfast, lunch and dinner.
- Re-read the beginning of the text. Discuss how Noi would need to find ways to occupy his time all day. Explain that they are going to make a sea-themed game for Noi to play. Generate ideas of things that may happen in the game. Ex: You've made friends with a mermaid, move ahead 3 spaces.
- Create your own game for Noi to play.
