

My Weather Forecast Script

Good morning from Antarctica News with me Mr Oates.

Well its been a lovely summer morning for most of the continent.

In the south it will continue to be a fine summer day, sunny and dry with temperatures hovering at around -33 degrees!

Moving into the north, temperatures are a lot brighter with highs of -10 degrees. So if you are a seal, pick up a penguin today as they will be heading out for a refreshing dip in the ocean so you will have no problem bagging yourself one or two as a tasty snack! Delicious!

Wind across the continent may reach up to 50 miles per hour today so make sure you hat is firmly on your head!

That's all from us as at Antarctica news!

Don't forget.. Why didn't the penguin jump off the iceberg?

He got cold feet!!
