. . . home!

"Please stay, Mr White," said Pecky and Poots.

"You can share our picnic," said Pog.

So Mr White stayed and, for a while, he was happy.

But the South Pole wasn't his home.

He was a polar bear
and polar bears don't live there.

Which is why he said goodbye and walked 12,430 miles all the way back to . . .

. . . the North Pole,
where he belonged.

He'd followed his wildest dream and had the best adventure. Even so, he was sad to think that he would NEVER see a penguin again.

But to Mr White's delight . . .

... he did!
"Hello, how did you get there?" he said.
"Where is your family?"

“Here we are!”

said Mr Pilchard-Brown.

“Someone put my egg in your hat,”

said Mrs Pilchard-Brown.

Pecky and Poots pointed at Pog.

“Can we have our picnic now?” he said.

And although the North Pole isn't home to penguins, Mr White was always happy to see friends.

“Welcome back!” he said.

Your Activity

. . . America.

"Howdy!" said Mr Pilchard-Brown.

"Busy!" said Peeky.

"Buzzing!" said Poots.

"Can we have our picnic?" said Pog.

"Not now, dear," said Mrs Pilchard-Brown.

America was awesome
but it wasn't home, so they followed Mr White all the way to . . .

. . . England.

“How do you do?”
said Mr Pilchard-Brown.

“Grey!” said Peeky.

“Grand!” said Poots.

“Can we have our picnic?” said Pog.

“Not now, dear,” said Mrs Pilchard-Brown.

England was charming but it wasn't home,
so they followed Mr White all the way to . . .

. . . Italy.

“Ciao!” said Mr Filchard-Brown.

“Wet!” said Pecky.

“Wonderful!” said Poots.

“I need a wee,” said Pog.

“Not in there, dear,”
said Mrs Filchard-Brown.

Italy was magnificent but it wasn't home,
so they followed Mr White all the way to . . .

. . . India.

"Namaste!"
said Mr Pilchard-Brown.

"Hot!" said Pecky.

"Huge!" said Poots.

"Put the python down, dear,"
said Mrs Pilchard-Brown.

India was dazzling but it wasn't home, so they followed Mr White all the way to . . .

. . . Australia.

"G'day!" said Mr Pilchard-Brown.

"Faster!" said Pecky.

"Fun!" said Poots.

"Can we have our picnic now?" said Pog.

"Soon," said Mrs Pilchard-Brown.

Australia was bonzer but it still wasn't home,
so they followed Mr White . . .

Today's task

Add your own page! Think of another country the penguins and polar bear could travel through. Write a few words and illustrate your page to represent your country.

Country Ideas: France, Spain, China, Brazil, Mexico, Egypt or Poland! Or any others you can think of ☺
