• Globalisation builds on your knowledge and understanding from year 12. We study this now as there are many opportunities to develop synoptic links with the superpowers topic. In addition further in depth analysis and understanding can be developed to link human rights and intervention. • Further curriculum time will be given in order for you to analyse your data for the NEA component.	• Further links will be developed in the run up to Mock paper 2 . It is vital at this stage that contemporary case studies are synthesised from wider reading of the Financial Times and additional textbooks from the school library. • Full revision programme is required at this stage as this result will form a major part of the predicted grades for UCAS.	• All elements of the course have now been taught to allow you to look at paper 3. This paper is synoptic in nature and will require you to analyse an unseen resource booklet. It tests your understanding of different linked parts of the whole two year course therefore requiring you to analyse social, economic, • Political and environmental aspects of geography, which need to be backed up with case study evidence.	• Preparation for finals. To reteach misunderstood areas and develop further analysis of key processes.
