

Head for the Sugababes and Sound of the Underground and The Promise for Girls Aloud. She has had 35 top 10 hits.

It was only a matter of time before Miranda's unique songwriting abilities were called upon to co-write new musicals Billionaire Boy (Winner of Best Show for Children and Young People at the UK Theatre Awards 2019); Fantastically Great Women Who Changed The World (Winner of Best Show for Children and Young People at the UK Theatre Awards 2022) as well as Son of Rambow and Everything's Fine, a semi-autobiographical one woman show about motherhood, both in development.

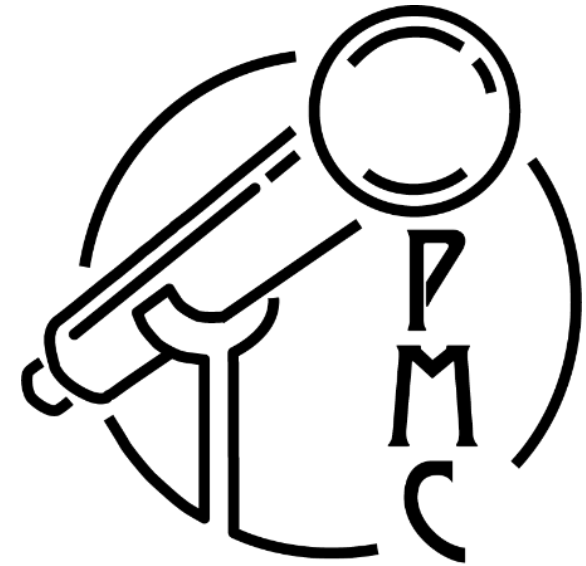

In recent years Miranda has continued to work with the best pop artists the UK has to offer. She has celebrated success with rising star Maisie Peters, co-writing "There It Goes" and "The Last One" from her UK #1 album The Good Witch, as well as "John Hughes Movie" from her debut album. She is currently working with Jessie Ware on her highly anticipated upcoming album.

In 2025 Miranda Cooper was appointed as an ambassador for the innovative and highly respected organisation, The F List, a UK-based directory of female and gender-diverse musicians.

Kev Westbury

Kev is the managing director of the Basement Door since 2008. The Basement Door is a charity which advances the education of young people, by providing training and experience through live music events. Over the years of developing the scene at the Basement Door and helping young artists to forge their careers in music Kev has given first steps to Arlo Parks, Gretel, Lexie Carroll and the Molotovs among the many hundreds of bands and solo artists that come to the Basement Door. Now embarking on a new venture KS music takes these acts to the next stage in management and publishing. Kev has worked alongside Hanwell Hootie and Marshall records to provide the youth stage and development over the last 9 years, giving young bands a platform on the biggest one day free music festival in London. He is delighted to be here today representing the Hootie.
