Maths

Moral- This half term, students have developed their functional skills by working through different mathematical problems. The problems link to every day scenarios and current issues where they have analysed data such as comparing the population of different countries and comparing the average cost of living.

Social- Students have developed their social skills in Maths by thinking together, discussing methods and explaining their mathematical reasoning. They are encouraged to be part of a team during team challenges.

Cultural- Students have explored the Mathematics applied in different cultures such as creating their own Rangoli patterns for tessellation and Islamic geometric patterns for symmetry. They are also able to answer problems involving different currency exchange rates.
