Reasoning with yourself

'When you're not feeling like self-harming, write a list of reasons to avoid self-harm. The list will be different for each person - it's whatever makes sense to you. Look at the list when you feel like harming yourself. It could include things like:

- ☆ "I've managed for two weeks without harming. I don't want to start again"
- ☆ "Once I start it's difficult to stop"
- ☆ "I'll regret the damage afterwards"
- ☆ "It doesn't help in the long run. I can harm now but I'll need to do it again in a couple of days."
- ☆ "I don't want to end up in hospital"
- ☆ "If I can hang on the need to self-harm sometimes passes"
- ☆ "There may be consequences I don't want e.g. brain damage, paralysis"
- ☆ "Self-harm affects my relationships"

1. Learn CBT (Cognitive Behavioural Therapy) or DBT (Dialectical Behaviour Therapy) techniques. <http://www.rcpsych.ac.uk/mentalhealthinformation.aspx>
2. When you're feeling good write yourself a letter you can read when you want to self-harm
3. Write down why you do not deserve to be hurt

Making yourself safe

- Try to identify things that prompt you to self-harm. If possible avoid them or prepare for them
- Avoid shops that sell things you might use to harm yourself
- Stay with a friend
- Ask GP to give you weekly prescriptions or pick up medication for two days at a time from the chemist
- Do not stockpile medication (prescribed or over the counter)

Reducing stress

- Do some relaxation exercises / listen to a relaxation tape
- Ask a friend to look after the children for a few hours
- Reduce your commitments in the next few days

Rewarding yourself for not self-harming

- Keep a chart – add a star for each day / hour you have not self-harmed
- If you do self-harm, just leave a space and start again

Delaying self-harm

- Keep things you harm yourself with in a locked cupboard or in a box with tape around it. It gives you time to think between wanting to self-harm and doing it.
- Phone Samaritans – arrange to ring again in an hour/ two hours and promise yourself you will not harm before then
- Use any of the suggestions for avoiding self-harm to try and delay it for a while
