

Active Planet—creating a volcanic location fact file

With this week's work, there are 4 volcano fact files. Pick one and read the information carefully.

Then create a fact file for the volcano itself (on the 'volcano page' of the template) - don't forget to include which country it is in, how high it is and when it last erupted.

Next, find out more about the country where your volcano is located (you will have to ask your grown up if you want to use the internet to do your research) and then write about what visitors can see and do when they visit that country.

You don't have to use these templates if you have another idea for a fact file design.
