

Can I describe the African market place?

Can I spell common exception words 'she' and 'could' correctly?

Example of what we are looking for:

The market was very busy! She could hear happy people chatting and birds singing. She could smell fresh bread cooking. She could see a big tree high in the sky. She could smell fires burning. Also, she could see bright fabric all around her. She could feel the hot sun beating down on the people.

Using the word bank below, and your ideas from yesterday, write your own description of the market place.

She could hear	She could see
She could smell	She could taste
Also, she could	Sometimes she could
