

The Naughty Pixies

It was the middle of the night and the empty farmyard was still. The cattle were sleeping in the barn and the hens were silent. Suddenly, the handle of the barn door turned and the sound of a giggle followed by a chuckle made the cows stir. Two little pixies carrying a candle entered the barn. They began to tickle the cows behind their ears to wake them up. The bravest pixie put a saddle on the biggest cow and rode it round the barn. Meanwhile a dribble of wax slid down the candle and made a puddle on the barn floor. It was hard and shiny and the moonlight made it dazzle the pixies' eyes. They left the cows and started to skate on the puddle of wax. The smallest pixie tried to juggle eggs whilst skating, but began to wobble, and fell over with a crash! In the morning the farmer could not believe the mess in the barn, so he went home, put the kettle on, and made himself a cup of tea. What a pity that cows can't talk!!!
