Lockdown and Remote Learning ... A child's perspective...

This week on average is: AMAZING! It's our last week before coming back (WOO!), and it has ended on a high.

The gravity of this all has tremendous weight, and Isaac Newton would agree. I've enjoyed learning about forces this week.

I was born in Wigan so maths was really tasty! In statistics, we learnt about pie charts and the mean. I would give it 100%.

English has been legendary! But we're doing myths, not legends. It has been fun planning our own.

I could tell you a story in art, but it wouldn't be true. Using symbolism, we're telling mythical stories in pictures

We learnt how to say it is and it isn't in French, and I would say "C'est bien!"

This is our last week on home learning and we'll be back in class on Monday. YAY! I think we are incredibly lucky to have the opportunity to continue learning at home and it has been a great experience. I'm super excited to go back and see you all again.
