Unfortunately the school has no "Aladdin's Cave" full of instruments.

Beginners often use a reputable music dealer who rent instruments out, usually for three or twelve months at a percentage of the cost. This charge is then deducted from the final cost of the instrument.

Some students buy a second hand instrument while others are bought new instruments.

Students who participate in music tuition at Werneth may be eligible to purchase new instruments exempt from VAT.

Instrumental Teaching Service

Learning without limits

6 ways to offer a successful service

1. The school has their own team of visiting instrumental teachers;
2. The lessons are in school time and last for 20 minutes;
3. Times of lessons change each week, so your child does not regularly miss the same class lesson;
4. Times are displayed in the Music Area on the Instrumental Lessons' Board;
5. Each student is given a card on which to note the date and time. This will excuse them from their class lesson and the instrumental teacher signs it when they leave;
6. The tutors are paid directly at the start of each half-term block preferably by bank transfer. Once you have expressed an interest we will be able to send on your details to the tutor who will be then contact you directly.

Our commitment to learning

- The school has a proud tradition of supporting music making at Werneth and the school provides some subsidy for the lessons.
- £48 per half-term for 20 mins of weekly individual tuition is incredible value music tuition. This works out at around £8.00 per lesson;
- private tuition on many of the instruments is hard to find and would cost in excess of £18 per lesson;
- Further financial support is available for Pupil Premium students.
- to get the most out of the lessons we would ask parents to encourage regular practice at home. We provide a practice diary for each student;
- we also ask the parents to encourage involvement in relevant music groups available to help further development.
