

“The school has very high expectations of academic excellence but it’s achieved without pressure - he learns because he is really nurtured. I don’t have anything but praise for the school.”

“I feel so blessed to have found The William Hogarth School for my son. He loves going to school – he runs in happily every day and has done so since the day he started. The teachers and all staff know him by name and really care about him as an individual, and as a result, he is flourishing. The school has very high expectations of academic excellence, but it's achieved without pressure – he learns because he is really nurtured, and it's so great to see him loving reading and progressing in maths. He always wants to tell us what they've cooked each week and sing us the songs he's learnt in choir. It's great that the choir includes all year groups mixed together, and I'm always so impressed by how kind the older children are to him – it just comes naturally because that is so much the culture of the school. I don't have anything but praise for the school – Miss Stockley, the Head Teacher, is so inspiring, the curriculum is spot on, the teachers all care, and he is happy and doing really well academically. There's also a thriving PTA who organise brilliant events, including the Christmas and Summer fairs, as well as a new Gardening Club where we're creating a Forest area for outside learning. It's a great school!”

“Every day, ours kids come home with a big smile, sharing stories of the amazing time they’ve had – a testament to the school's nurturing environment.”

“The William Hogarth School will always hold a special place in my heart. From nursery to the present day, this school has instilled the best manners in my children, teaching them to treat everyone with kindness and equality. Every day, my kids come home with a big smile, sharing stories of the amazing time they had. Not once have they returned home saying they were bullied or mistreated—a testament to the school's nurturing environment. The Head Teacher deserves immense praise. She strikes the perfect balance between being a strict, disciplined leader and a friendly, approachable guide. For the children, she embodies discipline; for the parents, she is a true friend. Every staff member at William Hogarth School shows genuine care and love for the children. They greet each child by name, creating a warm, family-like atmosphere. The teachers go above and beyond, understanding each child’s strengths and weaknesses and supporting their development every step of the way. This school is more than just an institution—it’s a community where every child is valued, cared for, and nurtured.”

Parthi and Reka, parents to Ishana, Meghna and Mithra’s parents 9, 5, 3

“Academics are important to us, and we are delighted that William Hogarth’s results exceed national averages. Equally impressive is the school’s strong pastoral care, which has helped our daughter grow in confidence and feel valued as an individual.”

“Academics are important to us for our daughter, and we are delighted that William Hogarth’s results are now consistently above the national average. We also wanted strong pastoral care and have been so impressed with this aspect of the school. Our daughter is known as an individual, and her confidence has blossomed enormously as a result. The Head Teacher and other staff on the gate are always happy to chat informally, and this has helped to build a positive relationship between home and school, along with a strong sense of community. Since Reception, our daughter has had roles of responsibility and access to a broad range of clubs. This holistic approach has had a huge impact on her personal growth. She is curious, excited to go to school, and more resilient than when she joined. As a former independent junior school Head Teacher, I value the combination of high academic standards and exceptional pastoral care. Our daughter is happy and making progress; we are very pleased with the school.”

Caroline and Oliver, parents to Matilda, 7

“William Hogarth is a school that supports the whole child to achieve both academically and socially. I have seen my oldest daughter, now in year 4, blossom into a confident and articulate young person.”

“William Hogarth is a school that supports the whole child to achieve both academically and socially. I have seen my oldest daughter, now in year 4, blossom into a confident and articulate young person. She has a depth of understanding of all people and is able to celebrate uniqueness. This is especially important as our youngest daughter, who is in nursery, has special educational needs. She has been welcomed and supported by the whole school community. The SEND provision at William Hogarth is outstanding and the support given to all pupils is wonderful. My daughters are known by name by all the school staff from the school cook to the head teacher. This welcoming and warm environment is something special.”

Alice and Lee, parents to Violet, 8, and Clementine, 3

“Through the school community we have found like-minded parents and a strong support network. And we love that the school celebrates our daughter as an individual, and she is not just a number.”

“For us, the diverse curriculum, focus on each child, and the support for the local community, help the children grow into well rounded individuals and prepare them for the next stage in life. The teaching staff have nurtured our daughter and supported her learning giving her the confidence to perform, learn and enjoy everything the school has to offer. The school also has an excellent SEND programme where the support staff take time to prepare a programme to support each child’s individual requirements and are able to procure additional support as needed.

Through the school community we have found like-minded parents and a strong support network. The opportunities afforded to our daughter would not have occurred in her previous school - such as performing in an all-school choir at the O2 Arena and joining a rock band. We love that the school celebrates our daughter as an individual, and she is not just a number. This is all due to the enthusiasm and commitment of the staff, in particular Miss Stockley, the Head Teacher, and Mrs Luciani, the SEND coordinator.”

Samantha and David, parents to Eloise, 7

“Choosing The William Hogarth School for our children has been one of the best decisions we’ve made as parents. The personalised attention and nurturing approach have helped our children thrive both academically and socially”

“Choosing William Hogarth School for our children has been one of the best decisions we’ve made as parents. The personalised attention and nurturing approach have helped our children thrive both academically and socially, building their confidence and instilling a lifelong love for learning. The school’s innovative programmes and engaging extracurricular activities ensure a well-rounded education. We’ve seen tremendous growth in both their skills and character. The safe and supportive environment encourages every child to reach their full potential. I wholeheartedly recommend The William Hogarth School to any parent looking for a place where their child can truly flourish.”

Jonida, mum to Leandra, 10, Livia, 6, and Leyvi, 4

“Collective responsibility is practised in class and the playground, helping create a friendly and safe environment where kids learn to use their voices, listen, and respect others.”

"We feel so lucky to have found The William Hogarth School when we moved back to London last year, a super-friendly school where everyone knows each other's names and you instantly feel the community spirit. As in-year international arrivals, it was the best welcome our kids could have hoped for, and their experience has only gotten better.

The balance of hard work and celebration of learning is perfect. Homework and responsibility are part of it, but progress is always championed. The arts are integral with weekly singing assemblies, concerts and productions, plus trips to the theatre, museums and parks for hands-on experiences. Collective responsibility is practised in class and the playground, helping create a friendly and safe environment where kids learn to use their voices, listen, and respect others. The after-school clubs are fun, and Club Sporters is perfect for me as a self-employed person who needs flexibility.

Finally, as parents of three boys, one of whom is neurodiverse, it's meaningful to us that so many staff and teachers at the school are male. We appreciate them as role models for our boys to be nurturing, creative, funny, and warm. The diversity at William Hogarth is something we value and feel fortunate to be part of."

Kate and Matt, parents to Arty, 8, and Pip, 4

“We’re so pleased with how the school balances its attention to both his academic excellence and his personal development, ensuring he grows in all areas.”

“Our son Rei really loves going to his school. They provide him with a perfect balance of guidance and agency, and he has really flourished as a result. The school offers a wide variety of after-school activities, many of which were available to him from Reception onwards. This has allowed him to interact with kids of all ages, helping him thrive socially. Over the past months, his reading and writing skills have improved remarkably, and he has made great progress in a short space of time. We’re so pleased with how the school balances its attention to both his academic excellence and his personal development, ensuring he grows in all areas.”

Ferry and Katie, parents to Rei, 4