Curriculum impact

Child development is an engaging GCSE course and is relevant to today's society. It provides an opportunity for pupils to gain knowledge and understanding of applied knowledge and practical skills in child development. It enables them to become informed citizens, ready to make a positive impact in society when they leave school and gives the vital skills needed for raising children.

One of the greatest gifts you can give to your children is the development of a parent, and being the greatest role model your child has ever witnessed.'

Joseph Mercado

Child Development is a subject that has only recently been included in our curriculum offer at Key Stage 4. It is an ideal course for any pupil who is interested in working with children, or looking at a career that involves working with people. Pupils get to experience how young children grow and develop and even experience parenting using our realistic dolls!
