

The value of PATIENCE

Nobira thinks that patience is when you wait for someone politely without interrupting them and you wait for your turn to speak.

Chloe explains that being patient means you don't huff and puff when asked to wait or asked to try to work out the questions on our own first.

Ebony says that at Zouch she waits patiently to get her work checked if the teacher or TA is helping another child as she knows they will come to help her when they have finished.